"It is known that Mr. Allston began the picture in London before his return to his native country, and had very nearly finished it here fifteen or twenty years ago. Being obliged to quit the room in which he worked upon it, and unable immediately to find another large enough for the purpose, the picture was rolled up and laid aside. Various circumstances prevented his resuming the work until within a few years before his death. At one period it was considered by himself as requiring not many weeks' labor to complete it. In that state it was seen by some friends, to whom it appeared a finished picture. For some reason, however, the artist thought that the effect of the composition would be improved by a change in the perspective, and, in connection with this, an enlargement of the figures in the foreground. With this view, the king, the queen, and the soothsayers were to be repainted. He undertook the labor, and the entire figure of the king, except the left foot, and the heads of the soothsayers, were erased. What progress he had made in restoring these will be readily seen, as the picture is in every respect as he left it; except that the original figure of the king, now pumiced down so as to leave little more than the first color, was found covered with a uniform coat of dead color, which completely obliterated even the outline and of the new figure he had repainted, but not finished, only the right hand."

"Upon the head of the soothsayer, who faces the spectator, are the last touches ever made by the pencil of the artist, and but a few hours before his death."—1845.

124 A and B. Studies for the above (in the Hall). (See Nos. 460 to 470.)

F. WALKER.

125. Portrait of Washington Allston. Painted in London about 1807. Bequest of John E. Allston. GILBERT STUART: b. Rhode Island, 1755; d. Boston, 1828.

Educated at the University of Glasgow. Pupil of Benj. West, in London. After having practised with great success as a portrait painter in London, he returned to America in 1792, and settled for a time in Philadelphia. In 1807 he removed to Boston, where he afterwards died.

126. Washington. The "Athenæum" Head.

Painted from life, in 1796. Bought after Stuart's death, of his widow, and presented to the Boston Athenœum.

" A letter of Stuart's which appeared in the New York Evening Post in 1863, attested by three gentlemen of Boston, with one from Washington, making the appointment for a sitting, proves the error long current in regard both to the dates and the number of this artist's original portraits of Washington. He there distinctly states that he executed but three from life, the first of which was so unsatisfactory that he destroyed it; the second was the picture for Lord Lansdowne; and the third, the one now belonging to the Boston Athenæum. The finishing touches were put to the one in September, 1795; to the other, at Philadelphia, in the spring of 1796. This last, it appears by a letter of Mr. Custis, which we have examined, was undertaken against the desire of Washington, and at the earnest solicitation of his wife, who wished a portrait from life of her illustrious husband, to be placed among the other family pictures at Mt. Vernon. For this express purpose, and to gratify her, the artist commenced the work, and Washington agreed to sit once more. It was left intentionally unfinished."

This painting, in which the left side of the face is turned to the spectator, is the third portrait mentioned above; of it over fifty copies by Stuart's hands have been traced.

The second is now in London. Of the first, painted in 1795, and subsequently rubbed out, in which the right side of the face was shown, only three or perhaps four copies are known to exist.

127. Martha Washington.

Painted at the same time as the above.

128. Washington at Dorchester Heights.

John Trumbull: b. Connecticut, 1756; d. New York, 1843.

A son of the first governor of Connecticut after the separation from Great Britain. He served for quite a period in the army of the Revolution. In 1780 he went abroad and studied for some time with Benj. West. In 1786 he produced his first considerable work, "The Death of General Warren." In 1794 he went to England as secretary to Minister Jay, and remained there ten years, and again lived there from 1808 to 1816, till his final return to the United States. He then painted the four large pictures in the Capitol at Washington. He was the first president of the American Academy of Fine Arts, founded in 1816. Resided in New Haven from 1837 to 1841.

172. The Sortie from Gibraltar, Nov. 27, 1781. Athenœum. Engraved by Sharp.

176. Priam receiving the body of Hector. Athenœum.

THOMAS SULLY: b. England, 1783; came to United States when 9 years of age; painted portraits in Charleston, Richmond, and New York, finally settling in Philadelphia. d. 1872.

177. The Torn Hat.

Miss Margaret Greene.

BENJAMIN WEST: b. Springfield, Pa., 1738; d. 1820.

He began his career as a portait painter in Philadelphia. In 1760 he went to Rome, and remained in Italy three years, at the end of which time he settled in England. He was almost exclusively employed by George III. for thirty years. He was one of the original members of the Royal Academy, and succeeded Sir Joshua Reynolds as its president in 1792. He exhibited two hundred and forty-nine pictures at the Royal Academy in fifty years.

178. King Lear.

Athenœum.

WILLIAM PAGE: b. Albany, 1811; d. Tottenville, 1885.

Studied under Prof. Morse and at the National Academy.
Worked in New York and Boston, and afterwards was for

WILLEM KALF: b. 1630; d. 1693.

198. Fruit and Vegetables.

Upon a table covered with an olive cloth are grouped fruits and vegetables, rendered with extraordinary vigor and truth. On the left, seven quinces, some of which are still attached to the branch; on the right, gourds and melons, and two bunches of asparagus. Behind, two willow baskets hold peaches, nectarines, plums, bunches of white and black grapes, and branches of plum-tree, figs and mulberries, loaded with fruit. Very fine piece of painting. Engraved in L'Art by Em. Salmon.

Canvas: height, 0 m. 82 cent.; width, 0 m. 95 cent.

From a bequest of Sidney Bartlett.

SIMON VERELST: entered in 1666 in the Association of Artists at the Hague.

199. Still Life.

A dead partridge is suspended by a string tied to its claw the left wing broken; below, a kingfisher lying upon the table. Verelst, whose principal compositions are highly prized in the English collections, is an artist of very great talent, who has been surpassed by no one in the line to which he specially devoted himself. He reproduced the plumage of birds and their multiple harmonies with the most extraordinary fidelity. Signed in full upon the table.

Canvas: height, 0 m. 74 cent.; width, 0 m. 61 cent.

HANS HOLBEIN (attributed to): b. Augsburg, 1498; d. in London, 1554.

German school. A protégé at Basle of the printer Auerbach, whose editions he enriched with remarkable compositions, and of Erasmus, of whom he made an excellent portrait, he quickly acquired a great reputation. On his going to England, Erasmus intrusted him with his portrait for Sir Thomas More, his friend, and added a hearty letter of recommendation. He arrived in England in 1525. The High Chancellor received him with distinction, lodged him in his palace, occupied him for three years, and presented him to the king, Henry VIII., who appointed him the royal painter, and covered him with honors. He died at London, 1554, of the plague.

204. A Donor and his two patron saints, Peter with the keys, Paul with a sword. German school of the first half of the sixteenth century. Attributed to Hans Holbein the younger.

This picture was bought at Leipsic, where it had been in the possession of one family for a couple of centuries, by a young American, who took it to Berlin and submitted it to the judgment of an expert, by whom it was pronounced to be an original by Holbeln. So many false attributions of pictures to famous painters have, however, been made, even by the best connoisseurs, that it is well to avoid positiveness in such matters. The picture is certainly a most excellent representative of the school of Holbein, if it be not by the master himself. Every part, even to the most minute accessories, is highly finished; the shadows are transparent; the robe of St. Peter and the missal rich in color; the subdued arabesques in the background charming in taste; and lastly, the hands, like those painted by Holbein, are so literally rendered that their truth to life can only be appreciated by looking at them with a magnifying-glass.

Between the head of the donor and the heads of the saints, there is a strange disproportion in respect to size, which, more than anything else in this picture, would inspire doubt as to its having been painted by the great artist of Augsburg and Basle. The heads of the saints are not unworthy of him; that of St. Paul is intellectual and refined, and that of St. Peter, though of a somewhat common type, is full of sentiment.

PETER PAUL RUBENS: b. Westphalia, 1577; d. Antwerp, 1640.

Studied in Antwerp; resided in Italy and Spain, 1600-1608; afterwards settled in Antwerp, and died there, 1640. In 1625 he completed the celebrated series of pictures for the palace of the Luxembourg, now in the Louvre, commemorating the marriage of Marie de Medicis and Henry IV. of France. In 1628 he was sent on a diplomatic mission to Philip IV. of Spain by the Infanta Isabella, and in the following year he was sent on a similar mission to Charles I. of England, by whom he was knighted in 1630. He died possessed of immense wealth, and was buried with extraordinary pomp in the church of St. Jacques, in Antwerp. His pictures are exceedingly numerous, amounting to several thousands, but many of them were painted from his sketches by his scholars.

"Rubens," says Sir Joshua Reynolds, "was perhaps the greatest master in the mechanical part of the art, the best workman with his tools, that ever exercised a pencil. . . . His animals, particularly his lions and horses, are so admirable that it may be said they were never properly represented but by him. His portraits rank with the best works of the painters who have made that branch of the art the sole business of their lives. The same may be said of his landscapes. Rubens's masterpiece is generally considered 'The Descent from the Cross,' at Antwerp. He is still seen to great advantage at Antwerp; but probably the best idea of his great and versatile powers is conveyed by the collection at Munich, in which are ninety-five of his works, several of them masterpieces."

GABRIEL METSU: b. at Leyden, 1615; d. Amsterdam, 1668. 216. The Usurer.

In a sombre room a widow hands a parchment, with seals attached, to an old man. A little basket holding papers hangs upon her left arm, and in her right hand she holds a handkerchief with which she dries her tears. The old man, seated before a table covered with a red-striped cloth and heaped up with money and precious objects, wears a red cap. In his left hand he holds a piece of money, which he was preparing to weigh in the scales when interrupted by the entrance of the woman. He remains untouched by the despair which she exhibits. On the left a green curtain. This picture, of very fine harmony, broad touch, and great spirit of observation, is signed in full, and has been engraved by Leopold Flameng.

DAVID TENIERS: b. at Antwerp, 1610; d. at Brussels, 1694. 222. The Interior of a Butcher's Shop.

In the foreground at the right, a young and pretty girl is cleaning the lungs and liver of an enormous ox suspended at the centre of the picture. She is seen in profile turned to the right, and looking in the opposite direction to watch a dog who is drinking the blood which has fallen into a pan placed under the ox. The butcher is passing out by a door in the background on the right, where are seen near a fireplace the master of the house and a servant. The head of the animal is placed upon a bench. On the left the hide is thrown in a heap upon the floor, and the tongue is hung upon the wall. A wild duck, a cabbage leaf, and some household utensils complete this strikingly realistic picture, in which Teniers shows his skill in reproducing everything with that scrupulous exactitude and facility of execution, that delicacy, and that power of harmony which distinguish him in such a high degree. This vigorous painting - model of finished work - was etched by the master himself. Signed in full below at the right. Smith, Catalogue raisonné, Vol. III., p. 397, No. 517.

A marsh extends over all the foreground and in the distance towards the right, enclosed by banks covered with a luxuriant vegetation. The forest begins on the left, and the foliage of the beech, tinged with yellow by the rays of the sun, detaches itself from the darker foliage of the oak and alders. A man is fishing with a rod, and some ducks swim in the water filled with snags and weeds. Landscape full of grandeur, and executed in the most skilful manner. Signed with a monogram.

236. The Ruined Cottage.

In the centre of the composition, near a tumble-down cottage which rises beside a sandy and rough road, a horseman has just alighted. A farm boy, who is looking at a little dog, holds the horse, which is a dappled gray. Before the hut, a valet seated on the ground keeps watch upon another dog and the baggage of the traveller. At the left, where the road forks, a man and a woman are resting in a meadow. On the right, a path leads to a field and to a farm-house surrounded by trees. The sky is filled with clouds, which seem to presage bad weather, but the rays of the sun dissipate them here and there, and strike upon the traveller. The figures are by Philip Wouwerman. This picture, of high rank in the works of the artist, figured at the celebrated exhibition of "Treasures of Art" at Manchester, the label of which is upon the back. Described with the greatest praise by Burger in his "Treasures of Art Exhibited at Manchester."

In a meadow near the Meuse, a brown cow with a white head is smelling of some thistles. In the centre, a yellow cow, and a black one with white spots; beyond are lying a red cow and two others partly concealed, with a red cow spotted with white as keynote, turned toward the river, which is rippled by small boats. In the distance, Dordrecht in silhouette, the buildings of which are seen in profile against a sky gilded by the rays of a beautiful sunset. Very fine example of the master; a painting full of spirit, luminous, and with that free yet loaded brush which places Cuyp above all praise.

PRINT DEPARTMENT.

THE PRINT DEPARTMENT of the Museum of Fine Aris comprises the Collection purchased of the Estate of the late Henry F. Sewall (about 23,000 prints); the John Witt Randall Collection (estimated at about 20,000 prints), deposited by Harvard College; a collection of engraved portraits, etc., bequeathed by the late Charles Sumner; a collection of etchings by Jacque, Whistler, and Haden, deposited by the Boston Athenæum: over one thousand prints presented by Mr. George W. Wales, including a complete set of the Arundel Society's publications; a large number of French etchings and dry-points, etc., given by Mr. S. P. Avery, of New York; a number of exceptionally fine woodcuts and engravings by Dürer, the gift of Mr. Edward Habich, of Cassel, Germany, and of Mr. Edward P. Warren; a collection of engravings by the late John Cheney and other American engravers, presented by Mrs. Ednah D. Cheney; a fine collection of proofs of American etchings and wood engravings, many of them signed, presented partly by the artists themselves, partly by the Century Company and other publishing houses; a collection of lithographs, illustrating the history of lithography, the gift of Mr. Louis Prang; and divers other engravings and etchings, the gifts either of the artists or of other friends of the institution, the whole constituting at present a collection (constantly growing) of about 55,000 prints.

The special library of the Print Department, consisting mainly of books on the history and the technical processes of engraving, has lately received numerous and important additions from the fund for the maintenance and increase of the John Witt Randall Collection, and as further additions are continually being made, it is rapidly becoming quite a serviceable working library for students in this department of knowledge. A tolerably full collection of books on the modern photo-mechanical processes is included in the private library of the curator of the department, which has also been deposited with the Museum.

Exhibitions of prints, ancient and modern, are arranged in the Rooms, and are frequently changed. Separate catalogues of these exhibitions are published in cases of importance, and these can be bought at the door or of the attendant. When no catalogues of the prints shown are issued, visitors will find some information concerning them on framed tablets hung in the rooms, or on labels attached to the prints. The prints not on exhibition can be seen on application to the curator or his assistant. Access to the books in the library will also be given on application.

Persons specially interested in prints are requested to send their names and addresses to the curator, so that they may be notified of the opening of exhibitions, new acquisitions, etc.

Address all communications to THE CURATOR OF THE PRINT DEPARTMENT, MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS, BOSTON, MASS.

GALLERY OF TEXTILES.

In addition to what is shown in this room, the TEXTILE DEPARTMENT comprises some thousands of specimens of interest to the practical designer and the student of design, especially of Egyptian (Roman and Coptic) fabrics, of French, Italian and Spanish brocades of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries, and of Peruvian and Japanese textiles.

The objects not on exhibition can be seen by students on asking in writing for an appointment.

EUROPEAN TAPESTRIES.

From the Fifteenth to the Nineteenth Centuries.

"Tapestry is neither real weaving nor true embroidery. but unites in its working these two principles into one. It is not embroidery, though so very like it, for tapestry is not worked upon what is really a web, having both warp and woof, but upon a series of closely set, fine strings. Though wrought in a loom and upon a warp stretched along a frame, it has no woof thrown across those threads with a shuttle or any like appliance, but its web is done with many short threads, all variously colored, and put in by a kind of a needle. With the upright as with the flat frame, the workman went the same road to his labors; but in either of these ways he had to grope in the dark a great deal on his path. In both he was obliged to put in the threads on the back or wrong side of the piece, following the sketch as best as he could behind the strings or warp. As the face was downward in the flat frame he had no means of looking at it to correct a fault. In the upright frame he might go in front, and with his own doings in open view on the one hand and the original design full before him on the other, he could mend as he went on, step by step, the smallest mistake, were it but a single thread."—Dr. Rock's Descriptive Catalogue.

"Tapestry differs from embroidery in this, that in it the pictures produced are an integral part of the texture, while in the latter they are simply superimposed on a tissue already existing. It also differs from woven brocaded fabrics by being always the work of the hand, and not an unlimited mechanical repetition of the same design; so that each piece produced is distinctly original." M. Müntz. — La Tapisserie.

No. 1. In the Textile Gallery.

This magnificent tapestry of Flemish origin dates probably from the middle of the 15th Century. It is in four compartments,—The Creation of Eve; The Baptism of Christ, The Birth of Christ; and The Crucifixion. Note especially the figure of God the Father in the first. At the foot of each compartment are two life-size figures drawn from the Old and New Testaments,—Jeremiah and Peter, David and Andrew, Isaiah and James, Ozias and John.

Mrs. John H. Wright.

No. 2. In the Textile Gallery.

"Crossing of the Red Sea." Dating from the close of the 15th or the early part of the 16th century. Origin, Flanders. Silk and wool, with gold in some of the costumes for high lights. The gold has become tarnished by time, and shadow is produced in place of high light, but it is sparingly used.

It bears a great resemblance to some celebrated tapestries woven about that period, among which are "Chastity," a suite owned by the South Kensington Museum, dated 1507–1570.

It was probably painted by the same artist as these, and perhaps were by the same master, in one of those ateliers, half industrial, half artistic, belonging to one of the great tapestry guilds so prevalent in the Middle Ages, and which were in full vigor at this period.

In the border, which is narrow and simple with flowers, vines, and ribbons, the Gothic feeling is combined with that of the Renaissance. In the foliage of the subject and the massing of the Egyptians, the Gothic feeling is also evident. The characters are Flemish, and show the influence of the Flemish painters; but the grouping of the Hebrews into separate pictures is more in the manner of the Italian painters.

The costumes, as is customary in tapestry, are of the time of the weaving of the tapestry, and not of the subject. The Egyptians are in the armor of the 15th century, and one will note the exaggerated plumes, which, according to Planché, became general during the latter part of the 15th century.

Purchased from the Otis Norcross Fund.

No. 3. In the Hall.

Subject. "The Assumption of the Virgin Mary."

17th century? Origin, Italy or Flanders? School of Raphael. From the Annunziata Convent, Naples, to which it was given by Cardinal Caraff, whose arms it bears. Purchased from Sig. Alessandro Castellani.

Its workmanship is very delicate and beautiful, with the color now lowered but little, the gold still bright enough to give true value to the high lights.

Boston Athenœum. Lawrence Collection.

No. 4. In the Hall.

Subject: "Summer." 17th or 18th century? Silk, wool, and gold.

The design and brilliancy of coloring of this tapestry would indicate a Flemish origin. But at the time of its purchase it was catalogued as made at the Gobe ins. The series of the Four Seasons designed by Lebrun was worked at the Gobelins three times in the 17th Century and again in 1708 and 1712.

This is one of a series of the Four Seasons, three of which were purchased by the late George O. Hovey at a sale of tapestries belonging to the "Maison d'Orleans" in 1852. They were rescued from fire at the Chateau at Neuilly and later from the Boston fire of 1872.

Miss Marion Hovey.

No. 5. Hall.

Subject: "The Triumph of Peace." 17th century. Origin, Brussels. Painter, L. Van Schoor.

This was sold under the title of "France, crowned by Victory and attended by Minerva."

Van Schoor painted a number of cartoons for the ateliers of Brussels and Antwerp Two tapestries made at Brussels, after his designs, are in the collection of the Garde Meuble, Paris.

Gift of Miss Deacon.

Nos. 6, 7 and 8. In the Gallery of Textiles.

The history of ISAAC AND REBEKAH; three tapestries, probably of Flemish origin, 16th Century. Wide border of flowers and fruit.

No. 9. In the Gallery of Textiles.

SUBJECT UNKNOWN. — Italian? 18th Century.

Mrs. John H. Sturgis.

No. 10. In the Gallery of Textiles.

Subject: "ALEXANDER CROSSING THE ISSUS"? 18th century? Origin, France. Wool. The design is attributed to Charles Lebrun.

Mrs. John H. Sturgis.

No. 11. In the Gallery of Textiles.

Subject: Coat of Arms, with supports, of the class called "Tapisseries à devises et à armoiries." 17th century. Origin, Flanders?

These tapestries seem to have been in vogue at an early period. They were at first very simple, and their usage most common, though to-day they are rarely found. "The coats of arms are generally surrounded with lambrequins, surmounted by a helmet, and supported by figures or fantastic animals."

Miss S. G. Putnam.

No. 12. In the Gallery of Textiles.

BORDER, GOBELIN. 18th century. Semi-reclining figure of a man playing a pipe.

The famous manufactory of the Gobelin was founded at Paris towards the end of the 15th century by Jean Gobelin, a native of Rheims. In 1662 Louis XIV. and his minister, Colbert, united in this establishment all the trades which were under the royal protection, such as potters, weavers, etc. Charles le Brun, the painter (born 1619, died 1690), was appointed its director in 1663. He furnished designs for many fine pieces of tapestry, which were surrounded by rich framework of fruits and flowers designed by Baptiste Monnoyer.

POTTERY AND PORCELAIN.

THE interest in fictile wares has always existed, and it always must exist. From time to time it reaches a sort of high tide when all the world consents to look and to know something about it. Within the last twenty years this interest has been great, and it is likely to continue.

The fact that pottery and porcelain belong to the daily business of life, and that they are indispensable to the great event of that life,—a man's dinner,—make them indeed objects in which all may take a living interest.

Among the very first works which the hand of man has formed are pots and dishes; and one of the first machines was the potter's wheel, which is in use to-day as it was in the days of the pyramid builders. One other reason why pottery is among the most interesting of the works of man is, that it most easily receives the impression which the taste, the skill, the art of the workman can give it.

We thus get in the pot not only the useful thing, but whatever of form, of decoration, of beauty, of art, the soul of the workman may strive to express. The study of pottery, 'he efore, is, in some degree, the study of a part of man's soul. From the very outset, even as far back as the "Stone age," there were attempts at beauty of form and fitness of decoration. We find this expression of the artistic feeling in its pottery among all nations, from the Egyptians, through the Assyrians, the Greeks, the Moors, the Italians, the Germans; everywhere, and in all nations.

The Incas of Peru and the Toltecs of Mexico had their peculiarities of form and of decoration, though it must be observed that these earliest forms have a close likeness to the earliest attempts of all other peoples.

But when we get to a higher style of expression, we find the peculiarities most marked; and in such nations as the Chinese and the Japanese they reach art of the highest quality, and most especially in Color and decoration. There seems to have been, and to be, in the Asiatic races, this genius for color quite marvellous and quite superior to anything the white races have done. This is seen not only in its porcelains, but as well in its carpets, its shawls, its stuffe.

The loan collections in the Museum show excellent and varied examples of this.

It may be observed that the Chinese and Japanese artists did not sit down to copy a flower, or a tree, or person. There is a certain something which we choose to call the ideal which they caught. May it not be called the soul of the object rather than its body? And yet their work is not slovenly and careless, but is marked above all others by thoroughness and care.

The Greek artist appears again to have found his highest expression in Form; so that in the Greek vase we look for and find what we feel to be grace, beauty, and use in perfect combination. The collection in the Museum presents good illustrations of this; while the paintings upon them do not always reach a high standard of art. Nor must we claim that every Greek amphora or kylix is perfection even in form. It is not so. Nor is every picture of Raphael perfect; nor every play of Shakespeare divine. Only, among the multitude of Greek vases, etc., which the tombs have preserved for us, are to be found examples of form which have not been and cannot be surpassed.

The visitor should notice the collection of Etruscan vases in the Museum; and should observe that they are quite different from the Greek, which for so long a time have been miscalled Etruscan. This collection of Etruscan fictile work is most rare and valuable, as illustrating the art of pottery.

We find, again, among the Arabs and Moors, and especially those of Spain, another expression of art in pottery, which is beautiful and peculiar to them. Their decorations did not include the human figure, but were geometrical and whimsical, sometimes including plant forms and animals in great variety,—what have come to be termed Arabesques. Some excellent examples are in the collection. But the coloring of those made in Spain bore a shimmer, called a lustre, which is peculiar, and seems to have been original. It was produced by the use of mineral salts or oxides.

This Moorish ware was the parent of the Italian Maiolica, of which some good and very valuable examples have been presented to the Museum. When these Maiolica wares were first made in Italy (about A. D. 1500), they all had this lustre, and it was greatly enhanced in beauty above the work of the Moors by Mastro Giorgio at Gubbio, fine examples of whose work sell for enormous prices; but most of what is now called Maiolica does not bear the lustre, as the examples in the Museum make apparent. Both the Moorish and the Maiolica wares will repay attention, as they were the precursors of the porcelains and Faiences which afterward reached such great perfection in Europe.

Of European porcelains, the Dresden or Meissen and that of Sèvres reached the greatest perfectness, and have commanded most attention and most money. Examples of these can be studied at the Museum. But following the discovery of the true Kaolinic or China clay in Europe, Böttcher, about 1710, succeeded in making true porcelain in Saxony. During that century, porcelain manufactories were started in nearly all the countries of Europe, in which porcelain of greater or less perfectness was made. The study and collection of these has now become important, enlisting much mind and much money. These collections are of great value, and it is not uncommon that as much as $10,000 is paid for a single vase or dish. Growing out of all this art and this interest comes the porcelain and pottery used in daily life. In these, within this half-century, have been great improvements, and to this every household bears its testimony. For thus helping to beautify and perfect our household life we may willingly thank the lovers and collectors of pottery and porcelain, and we may and do look to collections in Museums of Art, also, to help on the good work. C. W. E.

Porcelain was made in Europe as early as the year 1581, under the patronage of Francis I., Duke of Tuscany. The manufactory had but a brief existence of about ten years. The next known attempt was made at St. Cloud, in the year 1695, by the Chicanneau family, where soft paste porcelain was made. In the year 1710 Böttcher had the honor to be the first to discover the art of making hard porcelain in Europe. Böttcher, born in Schleitz, in Prussia, received his education as an apothecary in Berlin, and in the year 1710, suspected of being an alchemist, fled to Saxony. Augustus II. hearing of him in Dresden, and supposing that he possessed the secret of making gold, took him under his patronage. It was while searching for the "philosopher's stone" that, in making a crucible in 1705, he discovered the nature of the clay to be Kaoline.* From that time he continued his experiments until hard porcelain was made.

The manufacture in Vienna was begun under one Stölzel, who fled from Meissen, in 1720. The Höchst pottery, in Mayence, began to make porcelain, under the direction of a workman from Vienna, named Ringler, in 1740. In Fürstenberg, the porcelain manufactory was established in 1750, by Hengraf, who came from Höchst. The establishment in Berlin was first attempted in 1751, but obtained little success until 1761, under Gottskowski.

The Frankenthal manufactory was established in 1755, by Paul Hannüg, who had been forced to leave Sèvres, and was assisted by Ringler, who, finding his secret had been stolen from him in Höchst, quitted that place and offered his services to Hannüg.

granite and other rocks that contain it.

Feldspar, the Petunize of the Chinese, consists of silica, alumina, and potash or soda, or both, and in the disintegration referred to it loses all the potash and soda and part of the silica, leaving only the remaining silica and the whole of the alumina, with which a small amount of water becomes combined. The kaoline resulting has an average composition as follows:

The Ludwigsburg factory was established in 1758, by Ringler, under the patronage of the Duke of Wurtemberg. In the same year the first manufactory in Thuringia was commenced.

In Russia, two manufactories were begun about the year 1756. In Holland, porcelain manufactories were established at Weesp, in 1764; at the Hague, in 1778; and at Amstel, 1782.

The Copenhagen works were begun in 1760. In Sweden they began to make porcelain, in the old manufactory of pottery, in Rörstrand, in 1735, and at Marieberg, in 1759.

Porcelain was made in France, after the first attempt at St. Cloud, in Vincennes, in 1740-1745. The works were removed to Sèvres in 1756. The Chantilly works were commenced in 1735; Sceaux, 1751; Strasbourg, 1752; Niderviller, 1765; Marseilles, 1766; Lille, 1785; Belleville, 1790.

In Italy, after the manufacture under the Medici ceased, there was no porcelain made until 1726, when one Francesco Vezzi established a manufactory in Venice, and was followed in 1735 by the Marquis Ginori, at Doccia, near Florence. In 1736, at Naples, the Capo di Monti manufactory was begun, under the patronage of Charles III.

In Spain, the only manufactory was that of Buen Retiro, near Madrid, established by Charles III. with workmen brought from Naples.

In England, the first porcelain works were erected at Bow, about 1740; the Chelsea, in 1745; Derby, 1750; Worcester, 1741; Caughley and Lowestoft, 1756; Plymouth, 1760; Bristol, 1772.

Josiah Wedgwood began his pottery works in 1752, but never made porcelain.

The collection here exhibited, though not large, is rich, especially in specimens of Chinese art. It is indebted to Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wales for the gift of six hundred and ninety-two pieces, and to Mrs. Richard Baker for a bequest of one hundred and thirty-three pieces of Wedgwood.

The visitor will find full and varied collections of antique Egyptian. Cyprian, Cretan, Etruscan, Grecian, and Græco-Italian vases and other pottery, including a large number of terra-cotta figures and heads, on the first floor in the "Egyptian" and "Greek Vase" rooms. In this room are, in Cases 1 to 4, and on adjoining wall, specimens of Majolica and Robbia ware; 5, Capo di Monti; Scandinavian, etc.; 6, Dresden and Vienna; 7, 8, 9, French; 10, 11, 12, 13, English; 14, 15 (flat cases), Maiolica and Faience; 17, Spanish; underneath, Bombay; 18, Delft. Grès de Flandres; 19 and 20, American pottery, Chelsea, Mass., Cincinnati, etc.; 21, pottery of the American Mound Builders; 22, Zuñi; 23, Chiriqui; 24 and 25, Mexican, San Salvador; 26, Peru; 27, 28, Kabyle, Moorish; 29, Terracottas; on the walls, Spanish, Persian tiles, and from Damascus and Jerusalem; 32 to 35, Japanese; 36, English figure pieces; 37 to 41, Chinese; 42, Persian; 44 and 45, Enamels; 46. Chinese: 48, Wedgwood: 49, Figure Pieces. In the corridor will be found the unrivaled collection of Japanese pottery made by Mr. E. S. Morse, cases 1 to 40.

MAIOLICA WARE.

In what is called Hispano-Moorish ware, we find the original source of this beautiful art-manufacture. Moorish potters were established in the island of Majorca (in the Tuscan dialect Maiolica) at a very early period, and fabricated earthenware plates distinguished for the beauty of their metallic oxide glaze. They adorned them with Arabic patterns and fantastic animals. The oldest establishment of this sort of pottery was at Malaga, where it was introduced by the Arabs or the Moors, who perhaps derived the secret of making it from Persia. The Pisans, who conquered the Balearic Islands in the twelfth century, are said to have brought the manufacture of Maiolica to Italy from Majorca. In the fifteenth century it was chiefly made at Faenza, under the names of pietra or terra di Faenza, whence the French derived the name of "faïence," which they applied to it. Unlike porcelain, it is made of common clay, and being only vitrified upon the surface retains a certain degree of porosity. That which was covered with a plumbiferous glaze, silicate of lead, was called "Mezza Maiolica." Thanks to the patronage of the Dukes of Urbino, the Maiolica made at Urbino, Castel Durante, Pesaro, and Gubbio attained a high degree of perfection during the first half of the sixteenth century, after which it began to decline under the growing taste for porcelain. The names of such distinguished artists as Giorgio Andreoli of Pavia, sculptor and potter established at Gubbio in 1498, whose plates are distinguished for their beautiful, iridescent glaze; of Francesco Xanto da Rovigo, of whose artistic skill the plate No. 7 (signed and dated 1532) is an example; and those of Guido and Orazio Fontana, who worked for Guidobaldo, Duke of Urbino (1540–1560), are connected with the great manufactories above mentioned. The largest platter, No. 6 (subject, the Triumph of Bacchus), and the two richly adorned and painted bottles (gourds), Nos. 8 and 9, are probably the work of Orazio Fontana.

The erroneous idea that Raphael made designs expressly for the Maiolica of Urbino and Castel Durante (whence the name Raphael ware, often given to it) may have arisen from the fact that some of the designs were taken from his works, or, as has been conjectured, from the substitution of his name for that of Raffaelino del Colle, a painter who worked for Guidobaldo I. della Rovere.

There is little doubt that the great reverence felt for the name of Raphael has contributed to the preservation of many of these fragile treasures, which were greatly valued by the principal families of Urbino and the Romagna.

The Duke Alfonso d'Este, who was himself an amateur potter, contributed not a little to the general use of Maiolica for domestic purposes by substituting it upon his own table for the plate which he was obliged to pawn to meet the expenses of the war which he and the Venetians waged with Pope Julius after the League of Cambray, in 1510. The Ferrarese factories were, for the most part, inactive from this time until 1522, when they again flourished, for we know that the celebrated painters, Giovanni and Battista Dossi, made designs for them in 1524. Duke Alfonso then wrote to Titian to procure for him a number of pieces of Maiolica from Murano. Among them were many Spezieria jars used to hold drugs. Of such jars we have specimens in Nos. 14 and 15, probably of Florentine manufacture.

No. 2 is an excellent example of the plates called "amatorii," or marriage plates. Upon these plates lovers caused the portraits of their betrothed to be painted, with such inscriptions as "Camilla bella," "Lucia diva," etc., etc., and sent them as presents, laden with fruits, sweetmeats. or confectionery.

ROBBIA WARE. (By the Side of Case 1.)

We now come to the works of a celebrated artist who combined sculpture and painting with the Keramic art, and originated a new and beautiful branch of decorative art was Lucca della Robbia, one of the most eminent of the many great Florentine artists of the fifteenth century. After long practising as a sculptor, he devoted himself to the discovery of a hard enamel which would give terra-cotta the durability of marble, and after repeated failures at length attained the desired result about the year 1443. With the true feeling of an artist, Lucca long used a pure white enamel upon the figures which he modelled, and preserved their sculptural feeling by keeping color in his backgrounds and accessories. Thinking, however, that his works might, if more highly colored, be used as substitutes for fresco painting, he afterwards added other hues than pure blue and green to his palette, and began to color the flesh parts and draperies of his figures. His nephew, Andrea, carried this still further, and under his hands and those of his four sons the distinctive character of pure Robbia ware was gradually lost, until it became an enamelled picture not much above the level of wax-work. The difference between the art in its purity and its decline may be judged of by the "Madonna and Child" attributed to Lucca, and the "Madonna adoring the Infant Jesus," by Andrea or one of his sons. The first is a pure and charming work, which, though by no means one of his best, will give the visitor some idea of the great talent of the artist and the plastic propriety of his work. The second will show him how, by overstepping the bounds which should separate painting from sculpture, a hybrid species of art was produced which had the merits of neither. Madonna and Child. They are of dark clay, often mixed with finely powdered shells. These were excavated at Diehlstaat, Missouri, by Dr. Geo. J. Engelmann, from a series of mounds on a peninsula which could have been cut off for defence, fortified by wall and ditch.

The date of the mound-builders has not been determined, and no resemblance can be traced in their skulls to those of modern tribes of Indians. Prof. F. W. Putnam, in the eighth annual report of the Peabody Museum, Cambridge, p. 45, quotes Prof. G. C. Swallow in reference to some similar mounds as follows:

"The six feet of stratified sands and clays formed around the mounds since they were deserted, the mastodon's tooth found in these strata, and other facts indicate great age. These six feet of thin strata were formed after the mounds and before the three feet of soil resting alike on the mounds and on these strata."

Also nine specimens of similar pottery dug up near Cairo, Illinois. Gift of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Wales.

THE MORSE COLLECTION OF JAPANESE POTTERY. -

In bringing the collection together, Mr. Morse has endeavored to secure specimens of every province in which pottery has been made, including work of every age, also the work of every maker and every variety of mark; and, further, to secure every kind of object made in pottery. The collection thus far embraces over four thousand five hundred specimens, nearly six hundred kinds of wares, over a thousand different marks, and nearly two hundred and fifty different objects made in pottery.

It is arranged by provinces, of which there are fifty-six represented.

Most of the original specimens figured in the famous work of Ninagawa belong to the collection, and these will be indicated by special labels.

At the earliest moment the specimens will be properly labelled, and an extensive catalogue, with marks, will be published.

Edward S. Morse.

Above these cases are twenty panels of CARVED WOOD, chiefly flower subjects, of bold execution and great beauty.
